IV. Suggested Course Maximum - 25

V. List any specific spatial or physical requirements beyond a typical classroom required to teach the course.

None

VI. Course Requirements/Grading System – Describe any course specific requirements such as research papers or reading assignments and the generalized grading format for the course

Minimum Requirements:

1. A parenthetically documented research paper of 2,000 or more words.
2. Essays.
3. Assignments, including exercises and quizzes.
4. A substantial final examination.

Grading Practices:

1. Essays should be graded and returned to the student as quickly as possible. In addition to marking mechanical errors, the instructor should make evaluative comments. When the essay is satisfactorily corrected, the instructor will file it. (The instructor should keep the paper until mid-semester of the following term. After that time, all essays should be destroyed.)

2. All writers make mechanical errors; however, instructors should emphasize that students must keep their writing free of certain kinds of errors. Among them are the following:

Ineffective sentence fragments

Shifts in constructions

Fused (run-on) sentences

Comma splices

Pronoun errors

Subject-verb errors

Faulty complements

Misplaced modifiers

Confusion of commonly used words. Examples:

Their/ There/ They're

Its/ It's Loose/ Lose

Except/ Accept

Were/ Where

3. Instructors should value content and organization as fifty to sixty-five percent of an essay's grade and mechanics as thirty-five to fifty percent of the grade. Mechanical errors on papers written in class should not be penalized as severely as those on papers written out of class.

Plagiarism

“Plagiarism is unacknowledged borrowing – whether intentional or unintentional – of a source’s words or ideas” and may occur as the result of “(1) failing to cite quotations and borrowed ideas, (2) failing to enclose borrowed language in quotation marks, and (3) failing to put summaries and paraphrases in your own words.” (Hacker, Diana. The Bedford Handbook for Writers. 5th ed. Boston: Bedford/St. Martin’s Press, 1998: 661, 570.)

The WCJC Student Handbook lists plagiarism as a form of misconduct for which students are subject to discipline and defines it as “the appropriating, buying, receiving as a gift, or obtaining by any means another’s work and the unacknowledged submission or incorporation of it in one’s own written work.” The English Department’s policy on intentional plagiarism is to give a zero on the submitted work.

Order of Assignments:

Instructors should observe the following schedule for the first week so that students changing sections will not be at a disadvantage in their new sections:

Distribution of Instructor Handouts with Mandatory Standardized Cover Sheet and completion of confirmation of receipt of handouts

Diagnostic essay

Introduction to the course

After the first week, instructors should present material in the order they determine is best suited to the needs of their individual sections.
