I. Topical Outline – Each offering of this course must include the following topics (be sure to include information regarding lab, practicum, clinical or other non lecture instruction):

Each module will be organized according to the nursing process. The focus will be on scientific and interpersonal approaches of the nurse to foster adaptation of the pediatric client to a maximum level of wellness on the wellness-illness continuum. Emphasis will be placed on the child as a biological, psychological, sociocultural and spiritual individual with basic needs. Modules will include Maslow’s hierarch of needs, stages of growth and development and the client’s interaction with the internal and external environment through varying degrees of adaptation for the ultimate goal of self care. Each module will include relevant content pertaining to communication, nutrition, pharmacology, clinical calculations, ethical/legal guidelines and teaching/learning methods particular to children/families with maladaptation to stressors.

Emphasis will be placed on pediatric clients who are experiencing maladaptation to stressors. The ability to think critically and creatively will be addressed, developed, and enhanced by utilizing the five steps of the nursing process in both theoretical and clinical settings.

Modules are: Infants, Toddlers, Pre-School Children, School Children, Adolescents.
